Camp New Harmony Changes Location— Fire Destroys Camp Newman

We regret to report that Camp Newman will not be available for this year's Camp Harmony due to the devastating fires in Sonoma and Napa counties. We are grateful that Newman staff were safely evacuated, and the camp is planning to rebuild. We are very sad to lose a place with so many happy memories, but we agree with the Camp Newman staff who said that community is more about the people than the place. The Camp New Harmony Committee has moved quickly so we can still hold our annual community gathering at another location.

The committee has spent considerable time researching and contacting other camps, and we are pleased to announce that we have found an alternate site for Camp New Harmony for this year. The site is Monte Toyon in Aptos, a few miles south of Santa Cruz, a beautiful spot in the redwoods. Given the short notice, we are very fortunate that the Monte Toyon staff are willing to give up their normal winter vacation to make their camp available to us, so please be sure to thank them.

While there was no site with all the advantages of Camp Newman, the committee felt it would be better to have a camp with limitations than no camp at all. Monte Toyon is smaller than Camp Newman, and some people will have to sleep in upper bunks. Most likely, everyone will have to share a room with at least 2 or 3 others.

All bedroom buildings have men's and women's bathrooms with showers within the building. There is an option to sleep off site with meals served on site, at a lower cost. There are also a very few spots for tents, but at the same fee as those sleeping in bunks.

RVs are not permitted.

The site's accessibility for people with mobility or other limitations is generally very good.

As we write this, the committee is working out the final details and they should be set by the time you read this. We will be sending e-mails to all who have already registered, offering them the option to keep, cancel, or modify their reserved place; please respond quickly when you receive it. Those who cancel by the deadline stated in the e-mail will receive a full refund.

In the meantime, we will reopen registration. Since space is limited at Monte Toyon, people who register after camp is full will be put on a waiting list pending additional cancellations. Please do not come to camp without a confirmed registration; you will be sent home.

Please check the Harmony listserv, the sffmc.org Web site, and the SFFMC Facebook page for the latest information.

The San Francisco Folk Music Club is a nonprofit corporation dedicated to the enjoyment, preservation and promotion of acoustic music in individual, family, and community life.

“I don’t sing because I’m happy; I’m happy because I sing.” — William James, psychologist

Musical Meetings

Musical meetings of the San Francisco Folk Music Club are held every second and fourth Friday at Cyprian’s ARC, 2097 Turk Street (at Lyon), San Francisco. There is plenty of street parking, but if you can’t find anything closer, you may park in the blood bank lot at Turk and Masonic. Cyprian’s asks that if we park in the lot, we use a parking pass. Parking passes are stored on the info table right inside the front entrance of the church. You can pull up to the front entrance and step inside to get one before you park. You can keep it in your car for future use since they are not dated.

Singing and jamming start at 8:00 pm; we start clean-up at 11:30 and need to leave by midnight. Two of the rooms require earlier leaving times. Bring finger-food snacks and beverages if you can. Guests are always welcome, and no one is expected to “perform”. Cyprian’s charges us rent; we ask those who can to donate $5 to $10 per evening, but if you can’t donate, we still want you to join us!

In consideration of our members’ allergies and other concerns, only service animals are permitted at SFFMC events, and all our events are fragrance-free. The wearing of perfumes or heavily-scented products is not permitted. If a situation arises that cannot be easily remedied, members may be asked to show responsibility by taking their pet home or going home to change out of clothing that has picked up the offending scents.

Redmond O’Colonies 12/22/50 – 9/18/17

by Deborah Sandler

We have lost our raconteur, our class clown, and purveyor of “Rural Ribaldries, Raucous Rusticana & Bawdy Badinage.” A great performer and beloved longtime Folk Club member, Redmond died suddenly of a stroke.

Michael Redmond O’Connell was born in Lancashire, England. He arrived in Los Angeles in 1977 and moved to San Francisco by 1979 and discovered our Folk Club. From a later interview: “It was an immediate and profound connection for me because I found my people.”

Redmond performed at the Castle Folk Club, Waterfront Folk Club, Plowshares, the San Francisco Free Folk Festival, the Festival of the Sea, Armando’s in Martinez and other venues. He did countless folk MC gigs and sang with Isles of Prydain and The Shanteymen. He recorded “So Far So What” in 1987 and “Raconteur” in 2013. He also provided food for the SF Free Festival for several years. His sweet voice gave us ballads, sea chanteys, love songs, swing and jazz, show tunes, and anything silly.

His comedy was legendary: He hosted “Jestivals” at old Camp Harmony, and was photographed wearing pink lacy underwear with an elephant trunk on his nose, with an arrow through his head, and in many other outrageous costumes. “Sister Josephine” “Benny’s From Heaven” “Horace Ate Himself” and other songs and monologues reduced us to helpless laughter. He became Martinez’s beloved Town Crier in 1991. His Crier coat will be enshrined in the Martinez Museum and there is now a banner honoring him on Main Street.

From a friend’s tribute: “I will not finish with RIP, Red, because that would simply not be fitting. RIM, Rest in Mirth.”

You can read what the LA Times wrote about Redmond at <<http://articles.latimes.com/2002/jan/02/local/me-19693>>.

Labor Day Weekend 2017 Campout at Boulder Creek

by Thad Binkley & Phyllis Jardine

Heat

This camp differed from all others in the 21 years we have been coming to the Boulder Creek Scout Reservation. The weather dominated the camp: Extreme heat warning, from the National Weather Service. High temperatures reported by AccuWeather.com: Friday, 106; Saturday, 106, Sunday 98; Monday, 78...then sprinkles and a brief shower.

Workshops were scarce — two instead of ten or twelve. People were too hot and lethargic to lead or attend them. At registration we had a canopy, furnished by Jim Ansbro, which kept registrars out of the sun during the hottest hours.

Gazebo

The Cubland gazebo was like a comfort station: a large fan blew until 11:00 p.m. on the Friday night jam, fewer hours the next two nights. A cot was set up for people who needed to rest in a fairly cool place.

Saturday was hot also, and some adults and children went swimming in Bear Creek and reported it refreshing. Because of popular requests, the lifeguard stayed two extra hours on both Saturday and Sunday.

Camp conditions

The camp was still not cleaned up when we arrived, mainly because of the scheduling of 400 or so teenagers to leave just before we were scheduled to arrive, leaving the ranger with little cleanup time.

A latrine emergency in Cubland had been solved just before we arrived. A loose board in the kitchen deck almost caused an accident. Some of the stairs to the tent cabins needed repair. The new ranger, Miles, said that repairs and renovations were planned for the winter months.

Open Mics

The open mics on Saturday and Sunday nights had full casts of performers, and were held next to the kitchen again, since the amphitheatre was still under construction.

Thanks to Gary Godfrey, we had a sound system.

Attendance

Despite the heat, attendance was good: 31 Friday, 68 Saturday, and 52 Sunday. Only three children attended: one seven-year-old, one ten-year-old, and one fifteen-year old.

Carts

Carts were still not available, and several people brought their own.

Finances

We came out in the black $73.00, after $285.00 in donations, for which we were very grateful.

Several people commented on how much they had enjoyed the camp.

Minors Not Served

C, E-flat and G go into a bar. The bartender says, "Sorry, but we don't serve minors." So E-flat leaves, and C and G have an open fifth between them. After a few drinks, the fifth is diminished and G is out flat. F comes in and tries to augment the situation, but is not sharp enough.

D comes in and heads for the bathroom saying, "Excuse me. I'll just be a second." Then A comes in, but the bartender is not convinced that this relative of C is not a minor.

Then the bartender notices B-flat hiding at the end of the bar and says, "Get out! You're the seventh minor I've found in this bar tonight."

Eventually C sobers up and realizes in horror that he's under a rest. C is brought to trial, found guilty of contributing to the diminution of a minor, and is sentenced to 10 years of D.S. without Coda at an upscale correctional facility.

The Music of Story, the Magic of Music, Part II

by Robert Rodriguez

A blind Scottish harper once visited the royal court of England, and he played and sang so enchantingly that he placed the entire court, king and all, into a deep sleep in order that he could steal a near priceless horse from the king's own stable (as retold in "The Loch Maben Harper," #192 in professor Child's English and Scottish Popular Ballads). In Runo 38 of the Finnish Kalevala, the cunning smith Ilmarinen, angry at a young maiden who resisted his physical advances, sang a song with an enchantment that changed her into a sea bird for the remainder of her life. A mermaid, spurned by her mortal lover, used her skill as a singer to create a powerful storm and tidal wave that drowned an entire town and all its inhabitants. In a local legend from the Cornish Coast of Southwestern England, a crafty peddler sings a song into his sack to tell an old man, hidden within, of the nefarious doings of his young duplicitous wife with the local parson, as retold in a tale from the Brothers Grimm entitled "Old Hildebrand", #95 in their collection of nursery and household tales.

The examples above are just a few of the ballads and narratives in which the cunning arts of singers from around the world, and down the centuries, play a major role and show the power of vocal music to accomplish any number of results, whether for good or ill. If the power of singing is evident from the landscape of global narrative, then it is equally true that the same power applies to the entire panoply of musical instruments from here, there and everywhere in between. From pipes, fiddles and harps, to drums, flutes, mandolins and accordions, musical instruments have played a vital role in a rich variety of narratives from the most ancient of times to the present day.

Everyone knows the tale of The Piper of Hamelin, who took a terrible revenge upon the folks of that town who would not pay him for ridding their town of the plague of rats. When he played his pipe for the second time, all the children followed him, with one exception, a boy who was lame, and led them into the side of a mountain from which they were never heard from again.

A more amusing tale comes from the Scottish highlands concerning a local piper who frankly was not very good at his art. While fishing one day, he saved the life of a kelpie, who got tangled in his nets. The kelpie was bound to give him a wish, and when the piper was asked what he wanted, he replied that he wanted to be the finest piper in the world. The kelpie then asked him if he wanted to please others or please himself. The piper said of course he wanted to please himself, and so the wish was granted. From that day on the piper became the finest exponent of his instrument in the entire world, but the only person who was ever pleased by his music was only himself.

Midas, King of Phrygia, he of the golden touch, once judged a musical contest between Pan on his pipes and Apollo on his lyre. When Midas decided in favor of Pan, Apollo became so incensed that he cursed the luckless king by giving him the ears of an ass, because as he put it, only a donkey could not tell the difference between beautiful music and its ugly counterpart. This tale seems to be quite popular from West Africa to Southern India, and the Indian variant has an unusual twist in that the secret of the king's peculiar ears is divulged by not one, but three musical instruments being a tabala, a sarod and a sitar.

And speaking of all God's critters, both big and small, musical instruments more than seem to influence the behavior of animals from one end of the world to the other.

In a tale from Haiti, a magic drum makes a herd of elephants dance on command or else may put them to sleep for hours.

In a tale from Naples in Southern Italy, Luigi the Simpleton causes a princess to laugh and smile when he plays his mandolin, and also causes an army of mice to caper and dance in front of her father's very palace gate. He does this three times, and in the end the king is so amused that he makes Luigi his court jester and gives him the princess to wife.

In a Breton tale, a young piper named Leon was able to make wolves dance to his pipes, and keep them quiet while he slept in the forest as he was on his way to a local festival. After that, he was known as Leon des Lupes, Leon of the wolves. And it was said that for the rest of his life, he felt more comfortable with the beasts of the forest than with other human beings.

In a tale from the Southern United States, a young man named Martin, after returning home from the Civil War, began to take up the fiddle, and found that he could influence the behavior even of a den of snakes up on Rattlesnake Ridge. Then one night he told folks that he would play all night, and keep the snakes at bay, and would not stop until the following dawn. All night long they could hear the fiddle, but just before sunrise, the music suddenly stopped. When he did not return the following morning, some folk went up to see what had become of him. They found him dead and slumped over his fiddle, for he had become so tired from playing all night that the snakes simply overwhelmed him with their poisonous fangs, and death came to him soon after. For a long time after, folks said that on certain nights of the year they could hear the sound of spectral fiddle music coming from Rattlesnake Ridge, and they figured that it was Martin's ghost entertaining the snakes up that way.

The origin of musical instruments from different countries and cultures is also a popular theme in world tradition. These would include how the courting flute came to various native peoples of North America, how the charango and pan pipes came to the indigenous folk of the Andean Plateau in South America, how the first fiddle came to Ireland, how the devil gave the gypsies from Hungary their first fiddle, how the first kantele-harp came to Finland as retold in Runo 40 of the Kalevala, and how the first butterfly harp came to the people of Vietnam because a poor woodcutter once saved the life of a fox who turned out to be nothing less than a blessed celestial from the distant heavens, and how this musical instrument helped him win an emperor's daughter to wife.

Perhaps the best way to end is with a modern anecdote involving another bagpipe. "It is difficult, nay impossible, to peacefully coexist with a beginning bagpipe player in a one-room apartment in downtown San Jose," said the young woman as she handed the empty revolver to the police lieutenant standing at the door!

California's burning – The sky's a smoky gray
California's burning – Don't go outside to play California's burning – With fires flaring near, it's hard to breathe the air
California's burning
California's burning – The sun peeks through the haze
California's burning – Don't see it much these days
California's burning – It sets a molten red,
I wish that it were gold instead
'Cause California's burning
Insatiable fires send birds flying from their wires
So many of them, how did they begin?
Like a scene from ancient Rome, folks evacuating homes
While ashes boldly ride upon the wind

California's burning – It's burning up the trees
California's burning – That brings you to your knees California's burning – The animals have fled their cozy forest beds
While California's burning
Insatiable fires send birds flying from their wires
So many of them, how did they begin?
Like a scene from ancient Rome,
folks evacuating homes
While ashes boldly ride upon the wind
California's burning – Hot embers fill the sky
California's burning – They bring tears to my eyes
California's burning – It makes you want to cry

California's burning – California's burning – California's burning

Hali says, "I wrote this in 2008—Randy and I were on our way to the Kate Wolf Festival and when I walked out my door, the sky was a smoky haze. Going through Ukiah, you couldn't even see the mountain, and I said, 'California's burning.' When I got in the Willits traffic jam (in a year before the bypass) I took out some paper and started jotting down lines, finishing it at the Festival."

Rosalie - Moments of Memory

by Gretchen Belgrave

[Editor's note: Rosalie Sorrels died in June. See the July/ August folknik. Here is a poem written by Gretchen that she submitted to the folknik.]

She actually listened as i perched on the edge of her bed
 at Lena's house,
 regaling her with my mediocre,
 unmusical psychedelic poems,

Late into the muggy summer nights after long sweaty sets
 at Lena's Caffè
 (yes, it has two "F"s) - earnestly conversing about everything
 Hedy West there too,
 in the room next to mine,
 sometimes singing,
 sighing, imbibing,
 and whatever else we did (it was the 60s)

They let me fit right in,
 they made it like a sleepover,
 just three gals together, giggling through the sultry summer
 though I was only waiting tables and they never did get to hear
 my pretty good fiddling (that was much later).
 and after losing touch,
 after losing Hedy,
 and Lena.
 now Rosalie...

Back then everyone, coast to coast was completely sure she was living right where they lived—at the same exact time —
 Boise, San Francisco,
 Saratoga Springs
 Utah, Nevada,
 New York City

She blurred lines of velocity of distance and thought (and out would come a song)

I treasure that hot dusty Saratoga summer, gone,
 but Rosalie is now truly everywhere at once

For me, 'though, another end of the end of my childhood.
